Soil, water contamination addressed

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Yolo County has received a state grant to clean up soil and groundwater contamination at the former Sacramento Generator site at 1725 West Capitol Ave. in West Sacramento.

The property remains in the name of the late Ernie De Bock, Sr., of West Sacramento. The generator building has been demolished and a condemned motel structure remains in the back of the property, said Matt Geisert, hazardous materials specialist with the county health department.

"Mr. De Bock had underground gasoline tanks on the property and had been ordered to do groundwater and soil contamination cleanup," said Geisert. "Mr. De Bock refused to do the work. The county, at the request of the state, took him to court. He still refused to do the work."

Soil contamination was found in 1988 when underground tanks were removed; and the city of West Sacramento obtained a warrant and bored into the ground to check the groundwater. It, too, was found to be contaminated -- although there are no nearby drinking wells which are threatened by the contamination, said Geisert.

"The well on the property has been abandoned," Geisert stated. "Most of the people in West Sacramento are on city drinking water and there are no nearby wells."

The state of California has given Yolo County $200,000 from a petroleum products cleanup fund to address the problem at the site.

Sacramento police pick up two teens suspected of robbery

Two juveniles believed responsible for the armed robbery of a West Sacramento market and West Sacramento restaurant have been arrested by Sacramento police.

At about 7 p.m. Thursday, Sacramento police officers in the K Street Mall area contacted the two 17-year olds. When the officers approached, one of the boys was seen to attempt to hide a handgun. Recognizing that the pair matched the description of suspects wanted for the robbery of Vicky's Mexican Market in West Sacramento on March 23, and of the Run-N-Tell restaurant on April 8, the officers "conducted an in-field identification" with the employees of another local restaurant. The suspects were identified and were released to the West Sacramento Police Department.

Both were charged with armed robbery and taken to Yolo County Juvenile Hall, said a statement from the West Sacramento Police Department.

In the two robberies, the two youths fled on bicycles after displaying a handgun and robbing the establishments.

Lighthouse: will not force removal of trees

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

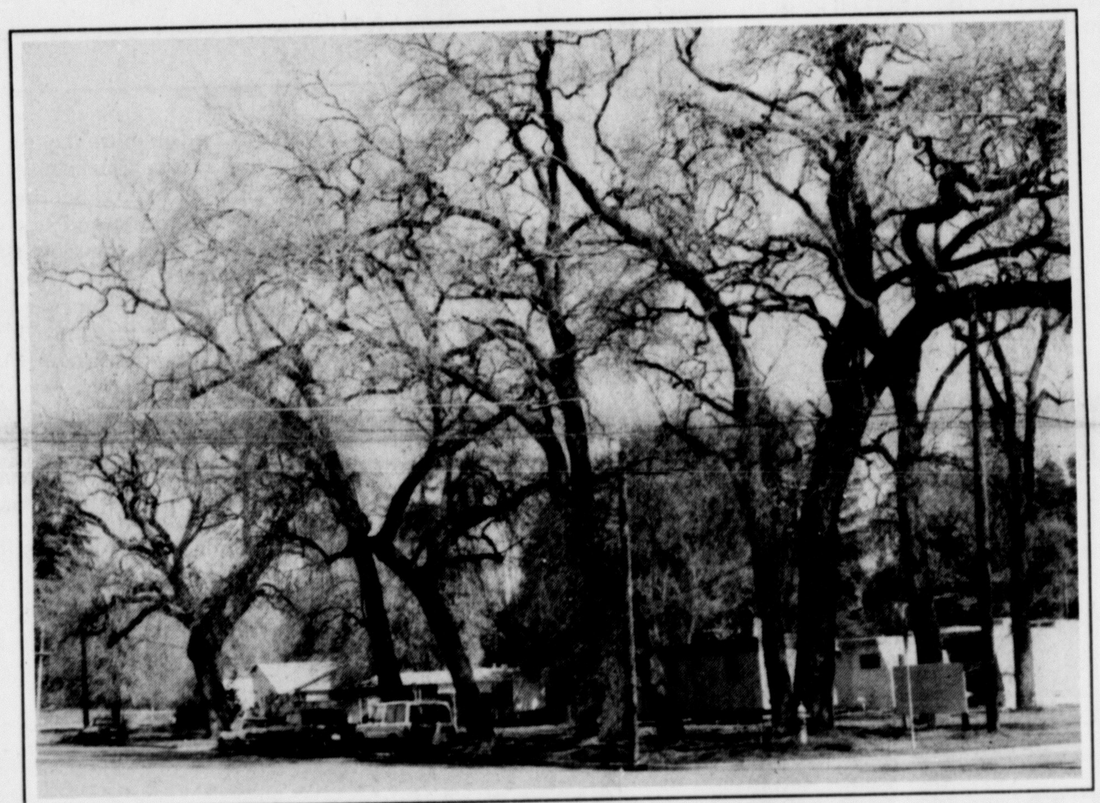

While West Sacramento resident Lana Paulhamus continues to work to save seven large oak trees from the bulldozer as part of the 5th Street expansion project, an official from the Lighthouse development nearby told the News-Ledger that he has given the city assurances that it can have up to nine extra months to explore alternatives to demolishing the trees and complete the street expansion.

"Our position on the trees is 100 percent neutral," said Peter Carollo, Lighthouse's project manager on behalf of Japanese parent company Hazama Corporation. "If they stay, fine, and if they have to be cut down, fine."

As part of a deal with Lighthouse, the city of West Sacramento is required to expand Fifth Street (which will be the main entrance to the planned Lighthouse development) by the end of 1998. Paulhamus and others want the city to come up with a new project plan which will spare the oaks alongside the street, while several other landowners favor the original plan which will require the destruction of the trees.

Citing, in part, the deadline necessary to complete the project, the West Sacramento City Council voted unanimously this month to stay with the original plan, after developing alternatives that traded street landscaping and on-street parking for the trees' lives.

But Carollo said that he had already offered -- in writing -- to allow three additional months for the project with no strings attached, and has since extended the offer to an additional nine months. Instead of requiring the project to be complete by December, the new deadline would be September of 1999.

GROVE OF SEVEN OAK TREES -- including two 'landmark' specimens -- on 5th Street

A Feb. 26 letter from Carollo to the West Sacramento community development department stated that Lighthouse was "prepared to accept an amendment to the (memorandum of understanding) providing for a three month extension for the completion of Fifth Street improvements."

"All other provisions of the MOU shall remain," the letter continued.

That three month offer has since been stretched to nine months.

"The only thing I want in return is assurance that it would actually get built," said Carollo.

Carollo said this assurance could come in the form of putting Lighthouse's contribution to the project into an escrow account tied to the completion deadline. Lighthouse has paid a $400,000 fee for the project and has been credited another $1 million for building an oversize pumping station partly to serve other areas of the city.

Carollo said he was concerned that citizens believed his company was responsible for enforcing a 1998 construction deadline, and thus preventing the city from exploring tree-saving options.

"Lana (Paulhamus) came to us and said the city had indicated to her that Lighthouse would sue for any contractual alteration to the Fifth Street agreement, and that's simply not true," he said.

A response from city officials was not immediately available.

Paulhamus said the trees are important from an aesthetic point of view to the city, and were valued by a private appraiser at $150,000. Others feel that it is more important to retain the landscaping and on-street parking planned currently for the future Fifth Street.

Citing fear of litigation if they approved a different project design, the council opted to proceed with the original plan.

WSPD seeks two suspects in robbery of local McDonald's

A McDonalds restaurant at 1700 West Capitol Ave. was robbed early Thursday morning by two masked men who fled with an unspecified amount of cash.

At approximately 6:19 a.m., the two entered the restaurant wearing ski masks and forced employees to hand over the money. One "simulated" having a handgun in a pocket, said the West Sacramento Police Department.

The pair fled on foot and were last seen near Westacre Rd. and Madrone Ave.

Both suspects were described as African American males in their mid 20s. One was approximately six feet tall, 200 pounds; the other was about 5' 9", medium build. Both wore jeans and hooded sweatshirts.

Anyone with information is asked to call the police department's office of criminal investigations, 372-2461, ext. 240.

Bryte native believes in volunteerism & the arts

Louisa Vessell is one of those rare and indispensable human beings who takes great pride in being a community volunteer.

"Back in 1985," explained Louisa, "I happened to walk into a West Sacramento incorporation meeting, and from that moment on, I've tried to do whatever I can to help make West Sacramento a better place to live. I was sick and tired of people from other communities looking down on my hometown, and it was obvious that the only way to change some of those stereotypes was to get involved."

LOUISA VESSELL

Louisa, who is currently the president of the West Sacramento Historical Society, has a very interesting history herself. "My grandfather was born in Russia," said Louisa, "but he spent most of his life in northern China. My father's real name was Veselorzorofs, but when he came to the United States after the Russian Revolution, it ended up being changed to Vessell. He decided to settle in Bryte because it had a Russian Orthodox church and because the town reminded him of a little Russian peasant vil-

McGowan recall petition validated by county

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The third time was the charm for a group of citizens seeking to recall Yolo County Supervisor Michael McGowan, who serves the First District (including most of West Sacramento) in the county.

After a pair of false starts, a third petition announcing the intent to recall McGowan was accepted as valid by county officials late last month. The group, led by Dick Goodson, Bill Resendez and others, now has to come up with several thousand signatures in order to put the recall on a future election ballot.

Yolo County Clerk Tony Bernhard told the News-Ledger that the recall group has submitted a copy of the petition it intends to circulate to obtain the approximately-2,800 signatures needed to place the recall on the ballot, and on Friday Bernhard's office announced that the petition met the legal criteria and was authorized to be circulated. The group has 120 days to obtain the signatures.

"That clock starts ticking after I notify them their petition meets the requirements of the election code," said Bernhard. If the process moves quickly, and the recall group obtains the needed signatures, it is "conceivable" that a recall measure could be on the ballot by the November, 1998 election, he added.

If so, there will also be a filing period for anyone who wants to run for McGowan's spot in the same election -- although the winner would only take McGowan's seat if voters approved his recall.

Below is a copy of the recall notice the group served to McGowan, and of McGowan's official response:

"TO THE HONORABLE MICHAEL McGOWAN:

"Pursuant to Section 11020, California Elections Code, the undersigned registered qualified voters of Yolo County, in the State of California, hereby give notice that we are the proponents of a recall petition and that we intend to seek your recall and removal from the office of County Supervisors, District 1, of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors, Yolo County, California, and to demand election of a successor in that office.

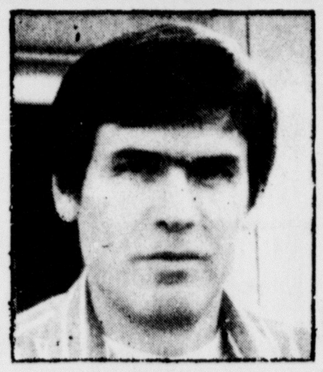

"The grounds for the recall are as follows:

"Mike McGowan has been neglectful of his duty and obligation to the citizens of West Sacramento. McGowan has failed in a material way to bring back the court house, district and public attorney's office. Moreover, he has yet to open an office in West Sacramento for citizens to talk to him. Furthermore, McGowan has taken no action to insure the public safety by working to insure the river levees and secure, repaired and safe. Additionally, he has voted "yes" to support the merger of

You might want to think twice before becoming a cowboy

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

When I was about eight or nine years old, I knew exactly what I wanted to be when I grew up -- a cowboy.

I owned the fanciest pair of six-shooters on the block, I was always riding around on a broom I called Midnight, and I absolutely cherished my Roy Rogers lunch pail. I had a bright red cowboy hat which all my friends envied, a shiny Gunsmoke marshall's badge just like the one Matt Dillon always wore, and a belt full of silver bullets which would reflect the sunlight when I ran around the yard yelling, "Heigh-ho-Silver, and away!"

I also spent every Saturday morning watching old Roy Rogers and Gene Autry movies, and I never missed an episode of Gunsmoke or The Lone Ranger. My best friend even deserted me because he got sick-and-tired of me always insisting that he be my side-kick during bloody make-believe shoot-outs which always seemed to leave him stone-cold dead.

But what I think I liked most about all the cowboy heroes I worshipped was the fact that each and every one of them rode a really great looking horse. Roy Rogers had Trigger, with his flowing white mane and tail; The Lone Ranger had Silver, who was extremely smart and always in the exact right spot when Kimo Sabe needed to jump up on him and escape from the bad guys; and Tonto had Scout, the best looking steed of all, a handsome pinto with black and white patches who I'm pretty sure later sired an offspring which was ridden by Little Joe on Bonanza.

Anyway, all this love of beautiful horses led my parents to drive me and my brother and sister down to Napa one bright summer day to a place where they let little kids ride real live horses. I could hardly contain my excitement. I was actually, finally, going to get to ride a horse. I wondered if it was going to be a boy horse, or a girl horse? Would it be a smart horse, or a fast horse, or maybe both? And would it be a palomino, like Trigger, or pure white, like Silver, on maybe even a pinto, like Scout?

Unfortunately, the most anticipated day of my young life started to go downhill in a hurry. To begin with, the horse they gave me to ride was extremely overweight, obviously out of shape, and named Doughnut. Now what kind of name is that for a horse? How could a red-blooded young cowboy be expected to jump up on his horse and yell, "Heigh-ho-Doughnut and away!"

Then I happened to take a really good look at poor Doughnut. He wasn't golden, or silver, or dotted with gorgeous black and white patches -- he was the dullest, dustiest brown imaginable. Not only that, but he smelled really bad, and he kept lifting up his filthy, uncombed tail to go to the bathroom.

Once on the trail, things only got worse. Doughnut only had one speed -- slow. It was no use verbally trying to encourage him to gallop, or to spur him with the heels of my tennis shoes. In fact, the only time his hairy ears perked up at all was when he decided to stroll into the middle of a shallow creek and take a leisurely 15 minute drink of water.

It wasn't long after my extremely disappointing afternoon in Napa that I decided to hang up my guns for good. But if some of you are still considering being a cowboy someday, here are a few insights from the "Cowboy's Guide to Life", which a friend of mine recently came across on the internet:

Don't squat with your spurs on.

If you find yourself in a hole, the first thing to do is to stop diggin'.

There's more ways to skin a cat than stickin' his head in a boot jack and jerkin' on its tail.

If you get to thinkin' you're a person of some influence, try ordering somebody else's dog around.

Timing has a lot to do with the outcome of a rain dance.

Never interfere with something that ain't botherin' you none.

If you're ridin' ahead of the herd, take a look back every now land then to make sure it's still there.

Always take a good look at what you're about to eat. It's not so important to know what it is, but it's critical to know what it was.

The quickest way to double your money is to fold it over and put it back in your pocket.

And finally, always drink upstream of the herd.

SCHOOL NEWS

From the Washington Unified School District

Among actions and discussions at the April 14 special meeting of the Washington Unified School District Board of Education were the following:

A group of parents addressed the board regarding transportation of elementary school age children to the new Southport Elementary School. The walking distance is .75 tenth of a mile. The parents asked that district policy be changed to reflect a shorter distance. The board agreed to bring this back as a discussion item to the May 11 meeting.

Approved the following recommended routine and consent items:

1) Acceptance of donation -- Highway Patrol -- 12 reams of paper.

2) Furniture and equipment bid for Southport Elementary School.

3) Overnight trip -- River City High School -- Quincy Invitational Tennis Tournament.

The board met in closed session at 5:30 p.m. to consider recommendations of administrative panels concerning various five students. All recommendations

Memorial

In loving memory of my son, Mike Anthony Villescaz (Munchy). You're always with me, even when we're apart. Whenever we're apart, I close my eyes and think of all the happiness we've known, and of your smile, and then I feel better because I clearly see, since I hold you close within my heart. You're always here with me.

A lot has happened since you left us four years ago. We lost our grandchild, but I know in my heart she is up there with you and you are looking after her. There is not a day that goes by when we all don't think of you. You are always in our hearts and so is our little girl Trenida. Rest in peace my oldest son, and remember we love and miss you both very much. Love your mom and family.

SPORTS

Sports Insider: Rich's picks

By Richard Novoa

The NFL draft last weekend turned up some new and exciting players for Bay Area football fans. The Oakland Raiders as expected used their first pick in the draft to select the 1998 Heisman Trophy winner Charles Woodson. Woodson will shore up their weak secondary defense. Woodson will be in good hands in Oakland with veteran cornerbacks Albert Lewis, Terry McDaniel and All-Pro Eric Allen serving as his mentors. The Raiders had a very good draft day, picking up huge offensive lineman Mo Collins from Florida and defensive tackle Leon Bender from Washington State. They used their fourth pick to select a Stanford fullback, Jon Richie. Richie will provide some protection for their quarterbacks and spring open a few holes for speedy running backs. I have to give the Raiders a B+ on their draft day report card.

The 49ers on the other hand selected cornerback R.W. McQuarters, one of the best all around athletes in the draft, with their first pick, number 28th overall. R.W. (Robert William) will give the Niners a great defensive back, who was the NCAA's No. 2 punt returner last season and also plays wide receiver, catching eight passes for 245 yards and two touchdowns for Oklahoma State. The 49ers used their next five picks to find a couple of young offensive linemen to fill in for their aging group of pass protectors. They did find a young wide receiver out of Minnesota, who they say could be the next Jerry Rice. Only time will tell, so I give the Niners a C+ on their draft selections.

The 1998 NBA playoffs start this week so sit back and relax because there are some great matchups to enjoy.

In the East, the No. 1 seeded Chicago Bulls are playing the No. 8 seeded New Jersey Nets. The Nets, who haven't played in the playoffs since Moby Dick was a guppy, will be swept by Jordan and the Bulls in this best-of-five series. Chicago wins 3-0.

The fourth seeded Chicago Hornets will have a tough time with the fifth seeded Atlanta Hawks. I like Atlanta's big man Mutombo and their coaching experience. Atlanta wins 3-2.

The third seeded Indiana Pacers should have a difficult time with sixth seed Cleveland, but they have the team that can beat the Bulls. If they use this series to work their bench and gain some confidence, Miller, Jackson, Smits and Mullins might be able to upset the defending NBA champions. The Cavs match up well with the Pacers, but coach Larry Bird will have the troops pumped up. The Pacers win 3-1.

The five game series to watch will be the second seeded Miami Heat and their arch rivals, the seventh seeded New York Knicks. Remember last year's Eastern Conference series when New York was up three games to one and then a big fight broke out that resulted in suspensions, fines and a Miami comeback? Stay tuned for the next rumble at the Garden. The Knicks are without Patrick Ewing, so I have to go with the Heat. Miami wins 3-2.

The Western Conference has a couple of good matchups, but the red hot Phoenix Suns against the San Antonio Spurs is the series to watch. The Suns are seeded at four and have won 11 of their last 12 games. The Spurs, on the other hand, won 36 more games this year with the "Rookie of the Year" candidate Tim Duncan. Duncan is averaging 26.9 points and 12 rebounds per game in the final month of the season. If they put Duncan next to David Robinson, these two seven footers will be too much for coach Danny Ainge's young Suns. The Sun will set on Phoenix – San Antonio wins 3-2.

The defending Western Conference champion Utah Jazz will sweep the Houston Rockets. The "Mailman" Karl Malone and John Stockton are too much for the beat-up Rockets. Utah wins 3-0.

The third seeded Los Angeles Lakers will dispose of the Portland Trailblazers in four games. Portland didn't have Damon Stoudamire when these two teams split their series (2-2), but the Lakers are on a roll, winning 22 of their last 25 games. Lakers win 3-1.

The second seeded Seattle Sonics will have to keep an eye on the young Minnesota Timberwolves, who have some good young players, but they will win in four games. Seattle wins 3-1.

Well, enjoy the first week of the NBA playoffs, where the second round is where you separate the men from the boys!

See ya next week!

RC tennis in first place in league

From River City High School

The River City High School Tennis Team finds itself in familiar territory this week -- all alone on top of the Golden Empire League standings. The two-time defending GEL Champion Raiders defeated rival Colfax 6 to 3 on the road last Friday in the completion of a rain-suspended match from March 26. RC is now 3-0, Lindhurst is 3-1, and Colfax dropped to 2-1 in the GEL. River City, with an overall record of 15 wins and 1 loss, travels to Lindhurst this week.

When the weather intervened last month, RC was leading the Falcons 4 to 1, having received wins from girls singles players Douangchanh Lattasima and Aenoy Xayasone, #2 boys singles player Jeff Wright, and the #1 boys doubles team of Aaron Potnick and Phoungeun Souvannaphoungeun. The clinching fifth match victory came from the #2 boys doubles team of Khampheng Insixiengmay and Prak Pich who battled back from a 1-5 deficit when play was halted to win 10-8. The #2 girls doubles pair, Sue Yang and Sokpin Phoung, won nine straight games after trailing 1-4 for the sixth win. The Falcons took #1 boys singles in three sets, #1 girls doubles 10-8, and mixed doubles 10-6.

RC Coach Dave Brooks offered this assessment of the match and the race for the league title -- "It was obviously a very big win for us, especially coming on the road. Now we're alone on top of the standings and everyone else has to chase us. It's still very early in the GEL race and we'll have to continue working hard to make sure no

City commission looks at boat taxi & chamber funds

There are several items worth a look on the usually placid agenda of the West Sacramento Economic Development Advisory Commission (EDAC) tonight (April 22, 6:00 p.m., city council chambers).

First is a report on the city's unusual contract with the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, in which the chamber receives public money in return for performing a number of services and managing civic events. This program of sending tax money to the chamber started out when the city formed as a process in which public money was funnelled into politics; officials on both sides of the equation are now working to rein in the terms of the contract. If and when this happens, it will be a huge step in the right direction.

Also on the plate for EDAC is a report on the status of the River Otter Taxi Service, a private boat taxi business serving the Sacramento River waterfront areas. The service is also partly subsidized with public money -- and that too has raised some questions. Some citizens feel the water taxi industry should be left to the private sector; others feel that even if public subsidy of the service might be defensible for Sacramento, there is too little benefit to West Sacramento to help pay for the service.

While the city's redevelopment fund is using money for projects such as these (and on a much larger scale, to promote development in various parts of the city) the city's general fund apparently needs cutbacks. It is the general fund which pays for the city's police, fire and parks departments. While the amount of money spent on the taxi service and chamber of commerce is rather small in terms of the big picture, the symbolism of these other expenditures in times of a general fund cutback may not be so small.

The redevelopment agency receives money that would otherwise go into the general fund. The agency is created in order to boost development, which will then in theory bring in more revenues, which will benefit services such as police, firefighting and parks. Financing the chamber or water taxi service then won't affect the budgets of these other departments. But it is not clear whether West Sacramento is benefitting from its large redevelopment agency to the degree planners hoped when they created it a decade ago, diverting money from the city general fund.

Another item on the EDAC agenda is a briefing on the Lighthouse development in the Broderick (northeast) area of West Sacramento. On the top of many people's minds will be the city's planned expansion of 5th St. -- and its plans to take out seven large oak trees in the process. This, too, will attract some attention.

EDAC does not always get a lot of respect as a city commission. But with its mandate to advise the city council on economic development issues (which can go beyond simply voting "yes" or "no" on whatever projects staff brings forward to it), EDAC actually has high potential to be an active, dynamic wing of the local government. It could, if its appointed members choose, even set much of its own agenda.

Tonight's meeting demonstrates that EDAC can actually be in the thick of what's going on in West Sacramento.

Letters to the Editor

Threat to our freedoms

I neither smoke nor drink, but years ago did both in liberty.

The scene of uniformed officers entering a bar and catching people, not gambling brawling or brandishing weapons -- no -- in the act of smoking! and the bar owner brought before a judge for allowing his customers to smoke, is foreboding.

The reason people go to bars is to drink, smoke, and socialize. This isn't about health. The issue here is freedom.

Hearken back to 1938 when Nazi rifle butts smashed windows of innocent Jewish shopkeepers. Once laws were instated restricting the activities of Jews, the full force of government was used to round up the offending parties, supposedly for the well-being of the rest of the population.

A dictatorship? Hitler was elected by a majority of voters. That didn't make anything he did right. Government propaganda stirred up popular support for his crimes. On a Focus On The Family broadcast, Maria Hirschmann, who fled Nazism, defined propaganda: "You are constantly bombarded with only one side of an issue. You never hear the other side."

After endless months of taxpayer-funded government ads demonizing smoking, a poll touts Californians favor the smoking ban in bars by nearly 2 to 1. Opinion polls cannot justify oppression. (Are you or I ever asked?)

The framers of our Constitution met in taverns, drinking and smoking, never envisioning such infringements, yet wisely added the 9th Amendment to protect our inherited rights. Today the rights of a minority are trampled by a legislative majority that sweeps the Constitution under the rug.

One by one, our freedoms are surrendered by State lawmakers to "protect" our health and safety. Each mandatory law (helmets for children!), parental rights restriction, excessive taxation ($1.10 per pack?), brings Big Brother one step closer.

First they come after smokers, then drinkers, next Jews and Christians...unreal? Laws and lawsuits, misinterpreting the 1st Amendment, are instigated to confine Christians' free exercise of religion or speech to their Church buildings, by those labeling them extremists.

Stop the insanity, if you love freedom, let your voice be heard -- at the only polls that count. Work phone: (916) 451-8456. Home phone: (916) 371-1474.

Save the trees!

We've got more than enough pavement around here.

We've even got an 18 million dollar bridge going to nowhere. What can really be so hard about saving a few beautiful oak trees? Lighthouse Marina is willing to compromise, so all our city really needs to do is give the problem a little thought and leadership. Lana Paulhamus is right. Those trees are a living legacy of our past, and to destroy them for no really good reason would be a tragedy.

Pro-Falzone

I am writing to urge the citizens of West Sacramento to vote for Suzanne Falzone for Yolo County Superintendent of Schools on June 2.

As a former Yolo County Superintendent of Schools, I am favorably impressed by the skill and dedication Ms. Falzone has demonstrated in her responsibilities as Assistant Yolo County Superintendent of Schools.

In this capacity she has written and managed successful grant applications for K-12 students in the amount of over $3,000,000.

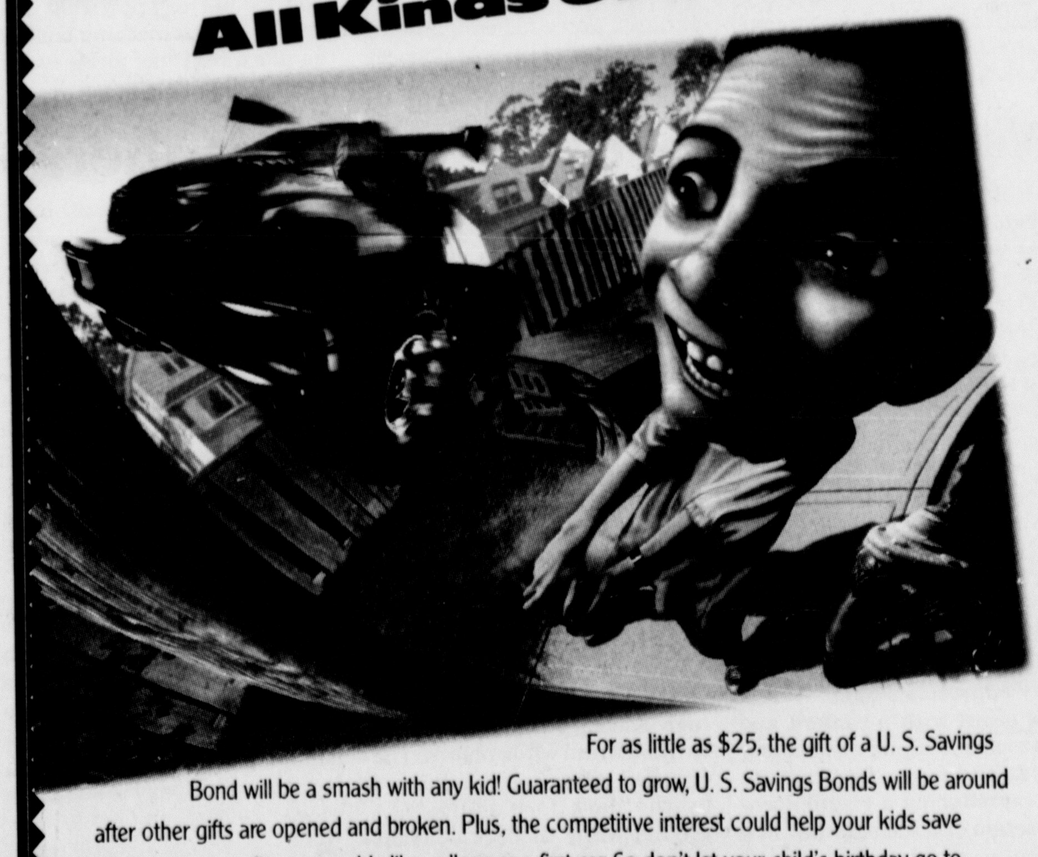

Ms. Falzone has demonstrated understanding of the needs by our most fragile students through the principalship of county-wide alternative education programs and as the leader of the Healthy Kids Consortion K-12.

Ms. Falzone is a certificated curriculum management auditor statewide.

A vote for Suzanne Falzone is a vote for successful Yolo County students and schools.

McGowan's response was officially filed with the county elections department:

"PLEASE READ THIS IMPORTANT MESSAGE FROM MIKE McGOWAN

"Sometimes you just have to say 'NO.'

"The circulators of this petition are a loosely organized group of substance abuse advocates (called CASAS) who are upset that Yolo County was not willing to give them $114,000 to fund their group. The County is responsible for distributing grant funds to legitimate community groups with a proven track record of producing good results for West Sacramento. The CASAS group requested all the money for themselves!

"This is taxpayer money. It can't be given away to anyone who walks in the door without any record of performance. That is why the Board of Supervisors chose unanimously to distribute the funds to other groups in West Sacramento with proven track records including: Suicide Prevention, the Food Bank of Yolo County, Sexual Assault & Domestic Violence Center, and Broderick Christian Center.

"I met with this group on numerous occasions and tried to help them become a legitimate and effective organization. Unfortunately, they are not interested in constructive dialog.

"The other claims in the petition are factually false and do not merit a response.

"Please do not sign this petition.

"Sincerely,
/s/Mike McGowan."

lage on the Volga River."

Louisa smiled and then added, "And on Mama's side of the family, her parents were quite proud of the fact that they had the first home in Bryte which had running water in the bathroom."

Louisa's parents met at a Bryte gas station her grandfather owned. "My mother needed a ride into Sacramento to attend the opera at the Memorial Auditorium," said Louisa, "and my father volunteered. See what great things can happen to you if you just volunteer?"

In the early 1950s, Louisa's parents decided to purchase one of the first model homes in Elkhorn Village. "My mother gave them $5 to hold the house," said Louisa, "and a little later, $25 as a down payment. I can still remember all the open fields, and walking to Washington Elementary School, which was on C Street, between 3rd and 4th. It was a great place to grow up and many of the people I knew back then have remained my best friends to this very day."

Louisa has a twin sister, Lana Paulhamus, who is also well known for her volunteer work and political activism in West Sacramento, and Louisa began to smile as she recalled some of the days they spent growing up together in Broderick.

"I can clearly remember putting up a lemonade stand and selling lemonade to the construction workers who were building Elkhorn Village. But mostly I remember how we could always find ways to entertain ourselves. For instance, we once created a wonderful ballet we were going to put on in a garage, and another time we gathered up a bunch of Mama's clothes and put on a fashion show. If I remember correctly, I think we changed all our friends five cents to attend."

Louisa also remembers growing up in a house full of music with parents who had an appreciation for the arts. "My father was a wonderful musician," said Louisa. "His first love was his family, but the piano was a close second. He worked as a professional musician for a number of years, and also gave private music lessons, even to children who couldn't pay. He always listened to the Metropolitan Opera on the radio, too, so music has played an important role in my life."

The arts in general, and the performing arts in particular, are something Louisa would like to see the city of West Sacramento more committed to in the future.

"On the positive side," explained Louisa, "the City Council has agreed to a public art component for city construction next year, but there's still a long ways to go before West Sacramento can consider itself a truly arts-friendly community. Unfortunately, even in the public schools, art programs are the first to be cut, and we need to keep reminding the powers that be of the importance of incorporating art into our everyday life. Young people especially love to perform, and we should provide them with programs and places to do that."

Louisa has always had great pride in her hometown.

"When I was young," said Louisa, "I would get really mad at people from Woodland, or Sacramento, or even those on the south side of the railroad tracks who looked down on us, and I can remember my friends and I proudly telling people "We live on the Bryte side of the tracks." As I've grown older, though, I've learned that deeds are just as important as words, and I've tried to get more involved in activities which can make things better. I'm very proud of the work I did in the incorporation fight, and in the creation of our own police force, and being a member of the West Sacramento Beautification Committee was also time well spent, but there is still much to be done. Our community is full of wonderful old trees, and as many of them as possible need to be saved. It would also be nice if we could dispatch our own police officers, have our own animal control, and even build a local historical museum. We have such a unique community. It is rich with diversity and in many ways it still has a wonderful small town charm. We even have our own community orchestra now.

"But for West Sacramento to be everything it can be, as many people as possible need to get involved and voice their opinion. I've learned that one person really can make a difference, and maybe best of all, it gives me a good feeling to know that I've given a little something back to the place that has given me so much."

Works of variety of photographers—

By Betty Fairbairn Sokolich
Exhibition Chairperson
East Yolo Friends of the Library

There is still time to see the exhibit of photos at the Turner Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue, West Sacramento. The show will be changed May 2, when the Washington Unified School District school children will have an opportunity to show art work inspired by the "Greenhouse" of the Yolo High School.

The photos now on exhibit are the creative works by Sacramento area Photography teachers. The display shows the many approaches to creating a work of art with a camera and darkroom including abstracting shapes and forms from nature and reproducing a visual documentation of a scene either in a romantic, moody, idealized, or realistic way.

Bob Calkins, Ponderosa High School, Shingle Springs, has two portraits, a beautiful young teenager and a sweet faced child gazing innocently up at the world. The colors are soft and attractive. Jack Schafer, Del Campo High School, Fair Oaks, in his photo shows three reactions of a baby's delight with a toy phone. The black and white photo is hand-painted to accent the phone. Jill Duncan, Del Campo High School, also shows a baby's happiness as the baby swing gives the child a thrill from the movement of the swing. She has depicted several children experiencing the joys of the swings and slides in a playground. She used a long narrow format and montage technique to give a rhythmical placement of the elements.

Bob Sweat, San Juan High School, Citrus Heights, has previously exhibited in the library exhibit space. Now he is represented with two dramatic black and white photos. A schism in the rocks becomes an abstract, mysterious form. A lone, gnarled, bare tree trunk stands in its weatherbeaten glory in a desolate landscape symbolizing natures tenacity.

A wide view is favored by Curtis Franklin, Laguna Creek high School, Elk Grove for his two black and white photos. The crowded cityscape is enhanced by the dark forbidding foreground while the city is aglow with light. In Franklin's second photo he captured the quality of changing light as the sun sets on the water.

Kim Brown-Morgan frequently visits Guatemala and her love of the people comes through her photos of the people. "Con Respecto a Danza Tradicional, Guatemala" has patterns of the costumes of the dancers framing the young participant, "Hembra Obrero" shows the intricate pattern of the lace worn by a lady whose back is toward us. The flower forms next to her are a good contrast to the black hair of the woman. In "Reassurance With Certainty" a group of people are lined up next to a building waiting expectantly for something to happen. The dark values add to the somberness of scene.

An elegant setting in a restaurant with interesting lighting has a view through a window of "The Night Vision of the Courthouse" in Auburn was taken by Rick Brown, Colfax High School. Also Brown's photo is "First Impressions of Colfax" capturing the first glimmering of day light as the sun rises and illuminates the town.

Chad Posner, Del Campo High School, Fair Oaks, uses black and white to create a moody, mysterious feeling in his Still-life of an old rustic table setting. His abstract photo of a metal fence in b & w has an interesting division of space and a balance of dark and light.

Tom Blackburn, Oakmont High School, Roseville, contrasts the rugged, rocky "Black Buttes" with the stillness of the mountain lake reflecting the granduer of the Buttes in his color photo. A tropical, romantic scene in "Amberpris Caye" is an appealing invitation to visit the paradise of the island. Both photos have strong color used for dramatic effect.

The color photo "To Dine" invites you into the more glowing atmosphere of the restaurant with the yellow and orange colors predominant. The clarity of the scene creates a beautiful composition with a variety of textures.
